2. Reading

___/21p.

Read the story about Kelly twice. Then do exercise 2a and 2b below.

When Kelly woke up, it was very quiet in her room. Where were her roommates? Kelly looked at her watch and looked again. It was already ten minutes to nine. She jumped out of bed, put on her jeans and ran over to the Lodge. The dining room was nearly empty. There was only one boy there. He looked up, smiled, and said, "Late? Hurry! Go get some breakfast. They are already cleaning up."

Kelly got herself a glass of orange juice and some toast, but the toast was already cold and hard and she didn't want to eat it. "What are you going to do today?" the boy asked. "I don't know. I'd like to go sailing, but I was too tired to sign up last night." "Well, good luck. See you around," said the boy and left.

Kelly quickly finished her juice and hurried down to the camp office. She checked the lists. All but one were full – all but hiking. "OK, so it will be hiking today," Kelly thought and put down her name.

"You are a bit late," said the girl at the office.

"I know, I know," Kelly answered.

"Put on good shoes and don't forget to take –" Kelly did not hear the rest. She was already on her way to her room. She put on her hiking boots, took her rain jacket and her backpack and ran to the meeting point. All the others were there already.

"Are you Kelly?" the coach asked.

“Yes,” said Kelly.

“OK, then. Let’s go.” And off they went.

After two hours the hikers stopped. They had a wonderful view of the lake. They saw the sailing boats and the surfers on their boards. Kelly looked at the boats and felt sad and sorry.

The kids sat down, opened their backpacks and took out their water bottles and their packed lunches. Kelly was also hungry and very thirsty. She opened her backpack and put her hand in. Then she remembered. She had no water bottle and no packed lunch.

Suddenly somebody next to her said, “Nice to see you again. Would you like an apple or some biscuits? Or some water? I always take along two bottles.” Kelly looked up and saw the boy from the dining room. She was no longer sorry that she was not on one of the sailing boats.
